Half Slave, Half Free
Ocean Air Travel Perhaps
From Wotan to Jehovah
Mexico's Divorces

By Arthur Brisbane
GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT, of New York, tells Boston: "Prohibition will be the dominant issue in New York and New England this fall."

It needs no ghost, come from the grave, to predict that. Prohibition will be the dominant issue in New York, New England and other states, for a generation, unless an adjustment is found.

Lincoln said a country could not exist half slave and half free. It can't exist half prohibition and half bootleg.

Dr. Eckenker's recent exploit, flying from Friedrichshafen to Brazil, to the United States, and home across the Atlantic, may mean the beginning of coast travel for everybody.

The United Aircraft Co., powerfully financed with the backing of the National City Bank, including some of the greatest aviation construction units in the United States, could easily provide the financial backbone of the enterprise.

A new explanation of Germany's defeat, quite interesting, is supplied by Gen. Erich von Ludendorff. He says: "All of Germany's misfortune, including the last war, are due to the fact that Charlemagne introduced a new Christianity in Germany, destroying the ancient Teutonic faith in Wotan."

Ludendorff says that had the Germans stuck to Wotan instead of turning to Jehovah they would have won the war.

Mary will doubt that. Husbands and wives separated by Mexican divorces will be intensely interested in Mexican Supreme Court rulings, casting doubt on the validity of divorces obtained in the State of Mexico.

Literally interpreted, that would cause embarrassment in America. However, such a decision should not affect those divorced in Mexico and remarried in good faith.

No question, probably, will be raised concerning such divorces and remarriages, unless through litigation affecting the property rights of minors.

Wet and dry politics create strange contrasts. In New Jersey, Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, running in the Republican primaries at Trenton, is drinking nothing alcoholic, has nothing to drink in his house.

One New Jersey candidate for the Senate, running as a sad and sober dry, is said to have been, when prohibition came in, owner of the "finest whiskey cellar in New Jersey."

Concerning the two candidates of whom you hear most, Morrow and Frothingham, the wisest politician in New Jersey says:

Frothingham has no chance at all. Part is the man for Morrow to watch. Part will probably be nominated, because the Republican party in New Jersey is 60 per cent prohibition.

Morrow, on the other hand, would be by far the hardest man for Simpson, the Democratic candidate, to beat. The man quoted knows New Jersey politics.

ing anti-Smith communications were paid by him by check by Ada B. Burroughs, of Richmond, treasurer of the headquarters committee of anti-Smith Democrats and that it was reported in Congress.

Walsh said he still did not understand, asking why the $300 was reported "as advance for printing a lecture."

Canon replied he had distributed one of his lectures on "prohibition repeal" and that he was not going to go into any further explanation of the matter further. He then turned to the anti-Smith campaign of 1928, and Canon read a short statement refusing to answer.

"For myself," said Walsh, "I am entirely satisfied that we were fully justified in pursuing these inquiries and that it is not to go into any further explanation of the matter further."

Canon then told Walsh that "if any subsequent would be the same course."

Walsh reminded him that a refusal to answer committee questions was a "petit offense."

He then considered all the "contingencies," replied Canon, "and I stand on my rights as an American citizen."

He then recalled that Sen. Heflin (D., Ala.) inserted Canon's speech "prohibition repeal" in the Congressional Record, and asked under whose frank it was mailed out.

"Senator Heflin mailed it out," said Canon.

He then recalled that Dr. Clarence Truitt Wilson testified he raised $100,000 for distribution of the speech.

"Did you make any accounting to Dr. Wilson of the $100,000?" asked Walsh.

"No," said Canon.

Aboard the Graf Zeppelin, en route to Friedrichshafen via Seville, June 4.—The Graf Zeppelin today bore down upon the Azores, over which Dr. Hugo Eckener expects to pass this morning. If all goes as planned we should be moored at Seville this evening.

Running through a rainstorm, the Graf Zeppelin late last night had conquered more than half the air miles between Lakehurst, N. J., and Seville.

At 9 p. m., Eastern daylight time, we were approximately at 38 West, 43 North. Dr. Hugo Eckener ordered the course turned abruptly southward for 60 miles and then due East again, thus rounding the peak of the depression coming down from the North.

DODGE RAIN

We were playing touch and go with the wind and rain. The wind that had been from the north to the northwest most of the day was now more westerly.

All the passengers said in the morning that after the excitement of departure from Lakehurst and the passage over New York they had been lulled to sleep by the humming of the motors. Everyone awoke with a healthy appetite. On the morning of June 4, the wind among the 23 aboard gusted with gusts to the east, rounding the Hudson river at New York, turned over the New Jersey Palisades, and followed Broadway's bright white way, en route to the Homeland.

MISS HALIFAX

The moon was shining brightly, its beams tracing the waterways and lakelets into a liquid fire, flushing their surfaces with sheets of steel blue flame.

Dr. Eckener ordered the course set due east at that time, and thus dodged the squall area south of Halifax.

In this mechanical age, even this buoyant ship submits to the clasp of mechanical claws and obeys their forces. At Lakehurst, the mobile mast gripped the Graf by the nose and walked down the "ole" into the open.

The clatter of the mechanical feet of the movable mast and its preliminary of the lift-off. The ground crew strolled confidently beside the dirigible, the "iron-horse" doing the work, until the wind poured over the hangar entrance, forcing the Graf's tail downward.

Then the navy officers and their men handled the situation splendidly, winning the praise of Dr. Eckener.

RADIOS THANKS

In appreciation of their splendid handling of his ship, Dr. Eckener has sent to the naval air station at Lakehurst the following message:

"Please accept my sincere thanks for your splendid co-operation in the expert handling of our airship. We hope that it will be possible to return some day to Lakehurst and renew our acquaintances."

ECKENER.
To the Navy Department at Washington he radioed:
"Leaving the shores of the United States, I wish to extend my appreciation of the splendid service rendered by the Navy Department."

"It is such efficient co-operation that has made our flight possible and which will tend to develop friendly and speedy communications between the nations."

PATTERSON IS IMPROVING

Capt. George W. Patterson, retired head of the liquor and vice squad, showed a slight improvement today, his attending physician Dr. Simon Curran, reported after a visit to the Patterson home in Moultrie st., Dorchester.

Capt. Patterson, who was stricken on Monday last, opened his eyes and smiled faintly when the doctor entered the sick room, but made no attempt to talk and closed his eyes again.

Thereafter he gave no sign that he knew anyone was in the room. According to Mrs. Patterson, the captain passed a fair night, with his sleep broken several times.

"He has plenty of courage," she said, "and is making a brave fight, but is very weak. However, we are hoping for the best."

Mrs. Roosevelt Leaves
Troubles at Home

By LOIS KENNEDY

When a governor's wife goes traveling, especially when she goes for anything as important as her oldest son's wedding, she leaves all her cares and responsibilities behind her.

At least that is what Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is doing during her stay in Boston to attend the marriage of her son, James, to Betty Cushing.

"I love Boston," said Mrs. Roosevelt today. "I'm going to pretend that I haven't a single thing to worry me and spend every moment enjoying myself."

MUM ON POLITICS

"But this time really belongs to the young people," she added thoughtfully. "I do not think any attention should be paid to the older people. This is the children's great time."

"I have nothing to say about politics," Mrs. Roosevelt declared. "I know nothing about the situation just now and I certainly do not feel in a position to discuss the next election."

This busy woman took an active part in her husband's campaign for the governorship of New York State in 1928. She had charge of the women's campaign and worked every day from nine until six at the political headquarters.

"I don't have any household worries," Mrs. Roosevelt confessed today. "A governor's wife has no supervision in her own home to do. Everything is done for her."

Mrs. Roosevelt is the mother of five children, four sons and a daughter. Her daughter is the oldest of her children and has been married several years.

"I don't know whether I will be as greatly affected by my son's wedding as I was by my daughter's," she said today. "One thing I do know for sure," she added with a smile, "the responsibility is not nearly as great."

MANY INTERESTS

"I have a great many interests outside of my home and family," said Mrs. Roosevelt. "I have two pet jobs working with young people that take up a lot of my time."

One of them is the furniture factory which I helped to start a few years ago with the help of a group of women. It is run as a trade school for boys. The other is the Todd-Hunter school for girls in New York City.

Besides teaching (in this latter school, Mrs. Roosevelt holds the position of vice-principal. She is also connected with several charitable boards and committees.

PARMA, Italy, June 4 (AP)—A suspended sentence of five months' imprisonment and a fine of $52.20 was imposed today on the Merchant Eugenio di Milan for speaking ill of the Pope.

This was one of the first cases resulting from the Italo-Vatican treaty ending the Roman question by which offenses against the Pope are considered and punished like offenses against the King, Mussolini and the government.

YOUTH'S BUSY ON MODEL YACHTS

Masts will soon be stepped in many sail-carriers which on June 29, on Charles River basin, will participate in the Model Yacht regatta sponsored by the Boston American under the auspices of the Boston Model Yacht Club and the Community Service, Inc.

Boat building has taken on a feverish spirit since announcement of the regatta according to information received by Fred L. Pigeon, of the East Boston spar builder and yachting enthusiast who is handling entries for the event.

Nearly all members of the Model Yacht Association of the Community Service will participate in the four classes open to boys and girls up to 17 years of age, he announced today.

In addition there will be at least a score of entries from outside Massachusetts, including several of the fastest model sailing craft in the country.

Silver trophies will be awarded by the Boston American to the winners of all classes, 14-inch, 24-inch, up to 36-inch, 36-inch and over, and in the Somerville schooner and Marblehead sail area classes, the latter two open to competitors of all ages.

In addition, the $3000 Gullotta cup may be placed in annual competition for the first time.

All entries for the event, which will start at 8 a. m. and continue through the day, should be sent to Mr. Pigeon, at 131 Coleridge st., East Boston, or to the Community Service of Boston, Inc., 749 Boylston st.

UPS AND DOWNS

There are two McDonaids in the Metropolitan Building. One, William J. who built and directs it; the other, George, who commands the impressive entrance. We were in quest of William J. McDonald, he of the Algonquin legend, who came to our city some 18 years ago a poor youth, developed the new Park on West End, and sold a couple of acres of land there, then started the East Boston Post Co., which now controls about half of that section of the city. But William J., like all important business men these days, is much too busy to be seen. He is now in conference—just one board of directors meeting after another. He was thus engaged when we called. Well, we thought perhaps George, the starter on the first floor, may do for the column as he knows everybody in the building. So down we dropped, 14 floors by express in the lift.

GEORGE THE STARTER

"What's the news around the building today?" we asked. George came back with the bromide: "Oh, the ups and downs as usual. Maybe you want to know, if the Algonquin legend, the one big jolly family in this building, the two big insurance companies, the Metropolitan and State Mutual. They play a championship game every year. There's a gang of Irish on one team and Jewish on the other. They call themselves the Ables and Kozles. Some baseball they can play, but if the Irish win both teams have to eat boiled dinner; if the other gang wins, then the Irish have to eat kasha."

"We will pass that on to the sports editor," we said. Now tell us . . . what is the lowdown?" George walked over in the elevator and gently pushed a fat lady into the car . . . clicked his snapper.

JIM, THE TOWN BARBER

George said everybody in the Met Building knows Jim. Maybe if he isn't busy working on some invention or other, he'll have time to share you. Just now Jim is engaged on a solution of city traffic problems. He is working out a scheme whereby pedestrians can hop over traffic jams. It's very simple, as Jim explains it. All you have to do with Jim's machine is strap it to your back, much the same as an aviator's parachute, push a button at the crossing and hop across. Jim showed us the Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 4.—John Henry Mears, who has fused his round-the-world plane City of New York with a lot of aviation gas for speed tests under load conditions will today continue his test.

Tests yesterday showed 14.8 miles per hour at 5000 feet altitude and 3000 miles revolutions per minute with a load only 500 pounds less than the swift Lockheed Vega must carry when the long transatlantic hop begins next Tuesday.

Arrangements for radio communication between the Westinghouse station KDKA at Pittsburgh, Pa., and the plane's short wave wireless set had to be abandoned because of removal of the apparatus for adjustments. W. C. Evans, Westinghouse engineer, notified Mears he would arrange for long distance tests tomorrow.

The fall slide on the City of New York is to be removed this week in favor of a tall wheel, to relieve strain on the fuselage in event of forced landing and to facilitate taxiing.

Beach Pajamas Raise Havoc With Traffic in Medford

Beach pajamas of vivid hues made their first appearance of the summer in Medford yesterday and caused several traffic snafus as their wearers perished through the downtown streets.

Dorothy Richardson, of Stoughton st., Medford Hillside, and Ruth MacDonald, of Sturges rd., both students at Medford high school, were the pioneers who braved the curious stares of hundreds.

They walked down High st., in the center of the city, and from there to the Mystic Lake beach, where they enjoyed a swim, and then returned by the same route.

WOMAN FIGHTS OFF ATTACKER

After she accepted a ride with a man whom she later identified as Mrs. Stella Parnet, 33, of Forrest ave., Salem, was taken to a lonely section in the Swampscott woods, where she says she had to fight to protect herself.

With her clothes torn Mrs. Parnet walked to her home, where she collapsed. Members of her family notified Salem police and Patrolman Thomas McNiff went to the Parnet home. Mrs. Parnet informed him that she was acquainted with her attacker by sight and gave him the number of the automobile. She then accompanied the policeman to the home of the man, where in the presence of Officer McNiff, she accused him. The man denied the attack, stating he never saw the woman in his life, although he owned an automobile bearing the registration plates given the police.

Clubs Find Gift Forest Sites

Location of State Federation's Present to Fall Will Be Announced in Fall

By MARY BREWSTER

The location of the State Federation of Women's Clubs forest, the Tercentenary gift of Bay State clubwomen to the Commonwealth, can not be announced until the fall. In the meantime the sites will continue to be surveyed and weighed financially and geographically.

"The best for the money obtainable" is the slogan, and to this end members of Mr. Daniel M. Goodridge's committee will continue their hunting until the resumption of club activities in September.

The State Forest committee have, of course, quite definitely concluded on certain territories and they are concentrating their efforts around these localities for the gift which is to go down in history as Massachusetts clubwomen's contribution to the progress and development of the state.

ALL CLUBS HELP

Every club is contributing financially that the reservation may have every bit of loveliness possible.

The brain child of Mr. Goodridge, retired conservation chairman of the State Federation, the idea was hailed by the clubwomen as a permanent memorial to them and their activities. On the trunk of one of the trees will be a bronze plaque with the inscription of the gift to the State from the clubwomen.

Mrs. Goodridge says about the project: "Through the many vicissitudes that have beset this project for the collecting of funds for the purchase of the land, we have our own Massachusetts that we as a federation in this tercentenary year might present it to our State in memory of the women who helped, side by side with husbands, fathers, brothers, to make it the power it is now, and always shall be in the affairs of the nation, details are still not complete."

"This tract, wherever its location, will be marked with a tablet appropriately inscribed as being the gift of the women of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs to the state as a tribute from us to the memory of those heroic women who preceded us down the 300 years. This might tell you the location of this spot at this time, but to have it a suitable one and one which is to take place in time must be given for a comprehensive and comparison of scenic beauty."

Paris Finds Beauty in Sea Green and Silver

SYMPHONY OF SEA GREEN NET, swarming with silver sequins, make up lovely evening gown depicted here from the offerings of Redfern. (Sketched in Paris).

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 4.

WHO CAN DENY the charm and beauty of green and silver? Like black and white, or black and pink, the cool combination of sea green and silver has an irresistible appeal to all who see more than just casual beauty in color. It is an ideal choice for summer evenings, especially for the tall, willowy type of beauty of clear complexion.

One can imagine Juliet of the White Hands wearing a robe of sea green with a flit of silver laces in her dusky hair, as delicate and lovely in this color alliance. In many instances frocks of pale green are embroidered with silver or ornamented with sequins, and some of the newest frocks are using silver sequins in rather heavy formation.

The earlier demand for the suit is now giving place to the coat, excellent examples of which are extant in the current collections. The simple coat of black woolen, expertly tailored, is very much in demand just now for wear with silver for scarfs, this type of coat far outnumbering the lavishly or even simply fur-trimmed ones.

Such coats are infinitely more youthful and therefore much more attractive than the rich looking coat with its burden of heavy fur trimming, which somehow always contrives to invest its wearer with a maturity that is far from desirable to the average woman.

The lovely evening gown depicted on this page is from Redfern's latest collection and is a symphony of sea green net, spangled all over with silver sequins. The princess bodice is belted and reaches well down over the hips to a point at either side. Here the cleverly draped circular skirt is attached, hanging in graceful folds of uneven length. The loose, long scarf and circular cape lend interesting detail to the back of the dress.

The other sketch is of a coat that corrects the type of coat in demand at the moment. It is a Paquin model of black hasha, a material that manages to hold its own whatever the material happens to be offered during each successive season.

The swirling, set-in darts of the material, a distinguishing feature of Paquin's newest models, lend a circular flare to the cape and skirt. The latter dips in back, reaching nearly to the edge of the dress skirt. There are sleeves, long gloves being worn with it.

BLACK HASHA COAT now in high demand in Paris. It is a Paquin model. Note circular flare to cape and skirt, the latter dipping in back. (Sketched in Paris).

For thirty years I have studied the problem of foot comfort for women.

In Arch Preserver Shoes I found the solution. That is why they are the only shoes in my two stores.

This policy permits stocks so extensive that any customer can be fitted perfectly, anytime.

Perfect fit is utterly essential. The "heel-to-ball" system of fitting, exclusively used in my stores, insures that every part of the shoe fits every part of the foot.

Try a pair of Arch Preserver Shoes. Learn first hand what the rigid steel arch; the metatarsal support, and perfectly flat innersole will do for your feet.

Women Will Wear Old Fashions If They Come Back as Newest Styles

Writers Tell Marion Davies That the Mode Is the Thing, No Matter the Date

Hollywood, June 4.—If the fashions of the gay nineties return to favor, all women will wear them, for women will be stylish regardless of what style is in vogue.

No woman here to wear an old-fashioned frock. That is the thought expressed in many of the letters received today in the Marion Davies Fashion Contest at the New Pastime Theatre, Hollywood, where Miss Davies latest picture, "The Florinda Girl," opens today.

"I would rather be dead than out of style," wrote Dr. L. Louis Haight, 368 South Washington st., Naperville, Ill.

"The psychological effect of being 'out of date' is very depressing," wrote Dr. J. H. Haight.

"If the old styles come back I feel more comfortable in them than I would feel in the present fashions, which would, of course, be out-moded."

Some of the other letters received follow:

A lady is a lady (frank or no) whether in short or long skirts or why not be comfortable, modest and contented, knowing you are not gathering gossamer beneath your skirts?

John Jordan, Carolina Farm, R. 2, O. R. 301, Burlington, Calif.

Alas and alack they look "in" here in a kitchen apron, whether they like to admit it or not. Men are only grown men when you let 'em get hungry when you find out what they like you in best.

Mrs. Daniel J. McDonald, P. O. R. 301, Burlington, Calif.

If the primal object for feminine style is to beautify her and exultate in her, then I think all men admire in women, then I say the old style is best and will come again.

Short hair never appeared in vogue and cannot last, and I think I have never yet met a man who saw any beauty in a woman's hair. Something should be left for man's imagination in modernity's demand.

Mrs. Walter B. Allen, R. 2, O. R. 301, Burlington, Wash.

The ultra-moderns may and will accept the latest designs even though they be old styles so long as they may be worn with a certain degree of comfort, but, perhaps, only for a season, for with the ever-changing trend of fashion we always return to length to what is most universal, popular, and today that popularity must be governed by economy, freedom and attractive dress.

If I expressed my honest and genuine opinion of the style of the "gay nineties" my pen to secure publicity as a lady would be shattered. Of all the hank saphire straitjackets and corsets which old-fashioned women carried I have never heard of those which were the "fashion" of the day.

VETS OFFERED BEER AS BAIT AT CONVENTION

Milwaukee, June 4 (AP)—Albert J. Oberberger, Wisconsin commander of the Spanish war veterans, seeks to bring the 1922 national convention of his organization to Milwaukee, but insisted before past board members last night, "we must be allowed to dispense beer in the park in Milwaukee in order to have a chance of getting the convention."

"We want to be able to offer beer as an attraction if we can get it," he said.

Commissioner Max Kufak said the board in granting permission to sell beer could in no way be charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

"There is no possibility of getting beer with more than one-half of one per cent alcoholic content," he said. "Federal laws stipulate it cannot be obtained. Since it is not to be obtained, it is not illegal to give permission to dispense beer of the only kind that exists."

"That's fine," replied Oberberger. "Milwaukee will have a chance of getting the convention."

Swampscott Woman's Sentence Suspended

Charged with larceny, Mrs. Edna M. Irish of Essex ave., Swampscott, was given a suspended sentence of six months in the House of Correction today when arraigned in Lynn Court.

The alleged larceny was from the Lynn Blue Findings Co. and the Lynn Larceny and Larceny Co. which concerns the former was secretary.

At her arraignment the court was informed that, so far, she has made restitution of $100, and that after two more payments of $25 each, she will have made full restitution.

Here is another interesting piece of Early New England furniture owned by Mrs. John S. Farwell of 59 Pleasant st., Brookline.

This piece, like that shown yesterday is the work of Goddard of Newbury, where Mrs. Farwell's ancestors lived in the 18th century. It is a bureau with typical Goddard half-shell carvings, and was part of the family furniture of Benedict Arnold's family in Newbury. Together with other heirlooms, it has always remained a family treasure.

Three More Insane Fugitives Run Down

Insol, Mich., June 3 (AP)—The capture in a rye field early today of three men refused to be taken into custody by the police.

Those caught in the field were Omar Hassan, 47, committed for murder, who has killed a fellow inmate since being sent to the hospital; Joseph Dabajak, 35, committed from Flint for a double murder; and John Campbell, 33, committed from Saginaw, for robbery. Thirteen inmates made their escape.

BOY GETS CITY $8,000,000 MUSEUM

Chicago, June 4 (AP)—An eight-year-old boy was responsible for the Roosevelt Museum of Science and Industry, soon to be housed in the reconstructed Fine Arts Building at an initial cost of $8,000,000. This was revealed today by Julius Rosenberg, the boy's father, who has endowed the museum with $200,000. He told at a luncheon how it all came about.

When Mr. Rosenberg and his family were in Munich 20 years ago his son, then eight, disappeared. There was great consternation and the police searched until young Rosenberg was found at the Deutsche Museum, having been seized and transported at an early age of locomotive, puffing steam, in grand sporting with all the animation of his earlier days.

"I became just as interested as my son in the museum and went time and again to it," related Mr. Rosenberg. "It was then I decided that if I ever had the chance I would try to give Chicago something similar."

500 Guests in Boston for Roosevelt Wedding

To more than 500 guests at the Country Club last night.

The bride, a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club, had her sister, Miss Mary B. Cushing, as maid of honor at the wedding ceremony. The bridesmaids were Miss Gladys Plowden of Brookline, Miss Constance Kelley of New York, Miss Kim's Ingersoll of Pennsylvania, Miss Curtis H. Hall of Eastover, N. Y. and Mrs. John F. Edwards of New York.

The gifts which have been shown since in the bride couple from every corner of the globe for the past week are worth a princely ransom. The gifts were on display for the wedding guests today in a large gymnasium on the second floor of the barn at the estate of the Cushing home at 308 Walnut st., Brookline.

mother makes a pudding...

ASK any member of any family and they'll tell you that enough Mothers don't make enough puddings. Ninety-nine people out of one hundred, both growing and grown, like puddings of some sort—and most of the ninety-nine like all sorts of puddings. That's what makes pudding day a gala day. And is a broad hint to Mothers to stage "pudding day" more frequently. And why? Because good puddings call for milk—or on them—or on the side. And every member of the family—including Mother—needs the vitamins [mines of vitality] generously supplied by Milk. So when puzzled how to keep up the necessary family health quota of milk [a quart a day for children—a pint or more for adults] let Mother say to herself "Why not one of the '57 varieties' of tasty puddings?" This suggestion takes for granted that you know how essential plenty of milk is to the health of any family group.

The BIG House

Morgan Refuses to Join Butch's Gang in an Escape Attempt

"See," explained Butch, "every day he has been going to that gate with a bunch of flowers he picks in the garden. The screw opens the gate to get them. When the time comes our gang will rush out."

In the first chapter of "The Big House" we meet Duncan Morgan, a good-looking young man who was sent to jail for his third "stretch." Morgan was a robber. Next we meet Dean Ward Kent. On a wild New Year's Eve party his drunken driving results in a terrible smashup. Kent is found guilty of manslaughter, as one girl is killed, and is sent to the Big House for seven years. He is thrown into a cell with two others and is saved by Morgan from a beating by the terrible "Butch." The convicts start a riot over food. Kent slips a knife in Morgan's pocket and the latter is placed in solitary confinement when it is found. He escapes from the prison hospital in a dead man's abroad, makes love to Anna and is warned by his former sweetheart, Baby. The police get him in following Baby. He is back in "The Big House."

CHAPTER 14

Down in the prison yard, Morgan found Butch—the same old happy-go-lucky Butch. He was talking to a group of cronies. When he saw Morgan he slowly detached himself from the others and without any perceptible show of joy walked slowly toward him.

"Hello, ladybird, did you fly home?" he greeted.

"Hello, Butch," Morgan felt a real affection for Butch. "I was fired right back again."

They started walking along through the yard.

"How's all the dames, Morg? Did you give 'em any what's it?"

"Sure—all of them. They sent their whoas."

"Well! No more do!"

"See, you're dumb, Morg. Well, every once in a while there's a big bunch of flowers—"

"And the screw has to open the gate—savvy?"

"I got it—some morning he'll open the gate and six of you'll crash through—very simple." His tone was ironic.

"What could be simpler?" Butch spoke with all the naïveté of a child.

"What comes off after you come through?"

"Then we bust through the outer gate—the car'll be waiting on the outside."

Morgan looked at him in astonishment, but asked merely: "When does all this come to pass?"

"Thanksgiving Day—"

"Most of the screws is off then—for that hot turkey. Ah! we'll give it to 'em cold turkey—a holly-fall!"

Butch laughed long and loud, and then quickly restrained himself as one of the guards turned suddenly.

"Butch, you're nuts. If you croak anybody it's the chair."

"What the hell's the difference?—I'm hooked here the rest of me life anyway."

"Who's on it?"

"Olson . . . the Hawk . . ."

"The Hawk—that means blood and nothing less."

SAGER IS FREED ON $3000 BAIL

Defendant Accused of Being One of the Salesmen Who Disposed of Securities

The twelfth person arrested in connection with the sale of allegedly spurious stock of the confectionery firm of Page & Shaw, was arraigned today before Judge James H. Sisk in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court. The man arraigned was David Sager of Natick, etc. Roxbury, claimed by the authorities to be one of the salesmen who disposed of the securities of the firm. Sager pleaded guilty to three indictments charging him with conspiracy to steal, conspiracy to defraud and conspiracy to sell securities without the sanction of the state officers.

Sager was one of those named in 23 secret indictments returned by a Middlesex county grand jury in connection with the investigation of the sale of $200,000 worth of stock in the confectionery firm. Among those already arrested are Otto E. Dunham, multi-millionaire of Beverly, and president of the firm of Page & Shaw and Raymond Holland, former vice-president of the concern.

Sager, when arraigned today, pleaded not guilty, and was released on $3000 bail pending his trial before a Middlesex County jury.

DEPICT HISTORY IN PAGEANT

The history of Newton over the past 200 years will be depicted tonight in the elaborate pageant—"The City Beautiful," at Newton Centre Playground.

Costumes, stage settings and lighting effects, producing garden-like scenes are expected to make one of the finest spectacles of the bi-centennial year.

The opening performance last evening drew a capacity audience, and all reserved seats have been sold. For the closing tomorrow night. Unreserved seats are available and afford a good selection, as sound effects carry the voices of the singers to all parts of the great outdoor theater. The city of Newton has appropriated $5000 for the setting alone.

Bells will be rung in every one of the 10 villages in Newton at 7 p. m. each evening to signalize the various performances or, if necessary, to indicate postponement.

Worcester Visitors View Hub Airport

Eleven members of the airport committee of the Worcester City Council paid a flying visit to the East Boston Airport in their tour of New England cities now operating flying fields.

The purpose of the visit they explained is to prepare a report to be taken to their city government in connection with the construction of a municipally-operated airport. Victor Hillman, leader of the group and chairman of the airport committee, declared that if Worcester should decide in favor of a municipal flying field it will rank with the best in the country.

Flower Canoe Symbolic of Boy's Death

The North End and West End paid unusual honor to two boys today, as the bodies of Samuel Saracino, 15, and Peter Cassaro, 15, who were drowned in a canoe upset at Sharon, were borne to their last resting place. A floral canoe, symbolic of the manner of their death, headed the funeral procession of 300 cars.

Seize Bootleg's Secret Patron List in Lynn

A little black book in which were entered the names of scores of business and professional men of Lynn, opposite each name being the amount of liquid refreshment purchased, caused a sensation when it was produced in Lynn Court today.

The book, it was charged, was the property of Luther Miller, 35, alleged bootlegger, who occupies a luxurious suite in the Breaker apartment on Lynn Shore drive in the heart of Lynn's "diamond district."

Judge Ralph W. Reeves denied, after several names had been read, that no good purpose would be served by reading the names in the book.

Miller was arrested by Patrolmen Coughlin, Kelley, Winder and McLaughlin. They testified they had a telephone appointment with Miller, who informed them he was in a position to sell any quantity of liquor.

"I am representing a million-dollar liquor syndicate," Miller is alleged to have told the officers. Then the party adjourned to Miller's apartment, according to the book.

The emotional North and West Ends turned out for the service, hundreds of persons jamming the sidewalks in the vicinity of the hearse home and South Margin st. near the Center house.

Because the highway was so narrow, the hearse containing Cassaro's body was lowered from a fourth floor window of the tenement house, while the throng in the street below, including his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Giuseppe Cassaro, and his five brothers and sisters called, "Peter! Peter!"

Similar scenes were enacted around the corner in front of the Saracino house.

James D'Agostino, 16, of Willard st., who was a third occupant of the canoe and who narrowly escaped the fate which overtook his companions, was one of those who marched.

Virtually all traffic in the district was at a standstill during the procession.

Mourners filled the church for a solemn high mass of requiem, after which the cortege moved on to St. Michael's Cemetery, Forest Hills, where both boys were buried.

The latest addition to Dr. Wilfred T. Gravelle's fleet, schooner George B. The Clapp, of British registry, is commanded by Capt. Kenneth Iverson. It was formerly the Giant King, said to have been a rum-runner.

The trip from Gloucester was delayed for adjustment of compasses, the diesel motor developing speed in excess of seven miles an hour. The Clapp will leave here on June 9 for Nam, Labrador, carrying a mailer for mail to a schooner to be erected this summer by Dr. D. MacMillan.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF CANOE VICTIMS

Floral Boat Leads Cortege of 300 Autos as the Bodies Are Borne to Rest

Through North and West End streets today moved one of Boston's most spectacular funeral processions, containing 300 cars, 11 carrying flowers; two bands, and several hundred marching mourners.

The hearse carried the bodies of Samuel Saracino, 15, and Peter Cassaro, 15, victims of a double drowning in Lake Massachusetts, Sharon, on Sunday.

At the head of the cortege four boys carried a floral replica of the canoe which upset, throwing the victims into the lake.

Joe was double-timing toward the gate. When he reached it, he rapped and the guard halted. Joe held up a bunch of flowers. The guard took them through the bars, and Joe, smiling and nodding his head, walked away.

Morgan shook his head. He could find no significance in this bit of pantomime.

New York, June 4.—Stock prices reversed themselves after the early part of today's Wall Street trading had turned sharply upward in a full and featureless market. Declines were the result of a traders in Wall Street by extended vacations has further detracted from the purchasing power of the market as well as removed the probability of "bear raids" on new issues.

NEW BEST SELLER.
The Iron Age and Iron Trade Review painted a much better picture of the steel trade than in any recent survey.
The natural gas pipe line business has in recent weeks developed into a best seller, contracts for 250,000 pipe from Texas Pipe Works to Chicago now being in the closing stage and an order for 100,000 tons of French pipe having been placed by the Phillips Petroleum Company.

Indications are that the steel market is improving quickly. The Iron Age and Iron Trade checked the best drive in the stock market with its report yesterday by the report of a sharp curtailment of production by U. S. Steel.

Selling continued during the first few minutes of trading, but the market soon turned in an advance of a point or two were soon common among important issues, a few specialties made heavy gains.

The Iron Age pointed out that 50 cents a ton in heavy mill work at Pittsburgh. The Iron Age pointed out that 50 cents a ton in heavy mill work at Pittsburgh. The Iron Age pointed out that 50 cents a ton in heavy mill work at Pittsburgh.

This commodity situation remained unsettled and confusing, however, and tended to check the marked revival of speculative activity. Several issues, however, their prices 1-3 of a cent for the second time in a fortnight. The price of iron and steel was the lowest in 10 years. Another heavy surge in the price of aluminum, which went into retooling of the Alcoa plant, was also noted.

OILS ARE STRONG.
Oil developed notable strength, reflective of the American Petroleum Institute's figures showing a substantial decline in output of gasoline last week, and rumors of impending strikes in the oil fields. Also, several rumors of oil companies are understood to be in the negotiation stage of a crude production problem, however, evidence to cause concern in the crude output last week showed a moderate gain.

The motor shares were firm, reflecting the output for June, indicating that the output will be maintained at a fair rate during June. Most manufacturers are curtailing output, but the curtailment is moderate among the larger producers. Ford Motor has scheduled 60,000 units for June, 100,000 less than last year's output. The output of the Chrysler Motor Co. is the largest of the year, and 74 per cent of those made.

Aviation shares continued weak, but Curtiss-Wright showed another new low, in the second round of bearish activity, reflecting the company's affairs. The motor share market is in a state of confusion, with conditions of the market profitable operations for the industry to be maintained at a fair rate during June. Most manufacturers are curtailing output, but the curtailment is moderate among the larger producers.

SHIPPING AND INCREASES.
Current construction programs are resulting in increasing activity in shipbuilding, and with a volume of tonnage yet to be contracted for, further gains may be expected in the next few months. The Standard Steamship Company of New York is a recent example of this.

This growth in shipping should be reflected in larger advances in the market for shipping securities. The Standard Steamship Company of New York is a recent example of this.

Shares gaining a point or two included U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can, General Electric, General Motors.
